

Our Filenames Make Searching For Music Easier.

Two of the most popular video creation programs, VideomakerFX and Easy Sketch Pro, have some limits on how you can access music that you can immediately use within their programs. At this time, neither allows you to have folders and or subfolders within their music/audio area. All you can see is a list of the available music by filenames. We felt like just naming a song is ultimately not that helpful in knowing any of the particulars about the song style etc. We would have put everything in mood and style folders but that didn't work with the way either of these great programs allowed you to access music within the interface. So, we came up with a filename structure that we think helps in navigating to a song that fits what you are looking for.

It works like this:

FILENAME Structure

Mood – Style – Group Letter – Length

FILENAME Example:

POS-pop-A1-fl-2-37

This file name would indicate a positive mood in a pop style in song group A1. It is a full length song that has a total running length of 2:37. That is a lot of information about the song and since the filenames are automatically sorted alphabetically in the program, all songs of a similar mood will be grouped together. Then you can look for style and length within that group. If you know you want something serious, or heartwarming or driving, etc., you would navigate to the appropriate part of the filename list in the import audio window of your program, from there you could audition the style you are after and then length you need so that you only have to audition a few songs to find what you need. As your library grows, you'll see how great this is for keeping songs in an order that makes more sense rather than having titles like New Dawn, or Golden Highway, or... names that don't really tell you much about the song itself.

Here are the identifiers used to make up our filenames in our Music Packs.

MOOD

Driving – DR

Fun – FUN

Latin - lat

Orchestra – orch

Pop – pop

Group Letter

Some of our songs come with more than one length and or arrangement. We felt it was important to categorize those by a group letter. That way, if you find a song you like, all the various lengths will all be in the same area you are currently looking at. If a filename has an underscore in this section, it does not belong to a group.

LENGTH

fl = Full Length Song over 1:00

sl = Short Length Song Under 1:01

Next in this part of the filename is the actual running length – indicated as 0-00
